

What is CALS? Comprehensive Advanced Life Support (CALS) is an educational program designed specifically for rural health providers to meet their advanced life support training needs.

CALS offers two unique courses: the two-day interactive Provider Course and the three hour Trauma Skills Module.

CALS training teaches an effective approach to the care of critically ill/injured patients manifesting a wide range of emergencies including trauma, cardiac, neurological, medical, pediatric, OB, neonatal, and airway compromise.

More than 96% of participants report that taking the CALS course enhanced their skills, confidence and teamwork abilities, leaving them better prepared to treat critically ill or injured patients.

Benefits of CALS

- CALS is designed for rural healthcare practitioners.
- CALS is one course that covers concepts contained in many of the other advanced life support courses.
- CALS is adaptable to the specific needs of rural and metropolitan arenas.
- CALS emphasizes teamwork in a team training environment.
- CALS provides a favorable ratio of students to instructors for optimal student learning.
- CALS focus is the Universal Approach to emergency care of rural patients.
- CALS identifies equipment essential for resuscitation.
- CALS includes all age groups from birth to geriatrics.
- CALS offers both classroom and hands-on skills components.
